Hall Councils

Both Curry and Frazer residence halls experienced one of their most successful years during 1993-94. Under the guidance of Larry Robertson, REC, Curry Hall survived yet another year of expanded freshman floor housing. Most of the success can be attributed to the dedication of the Resident Assistants. This group provided their residents with 185 floor programs. Another group responsible for Curry's success was their active Hall Council, lead by Laurinda Brundage, that organized the annual Halloween party for local children, an Easter Egg Hunt, Women's Basketball Banner Night, and a study skills program. They also supported the Angel Tree and the Beat the Boredom program. Also, the Curry men's intramural team, the Swillers, were the top non-greek intramurals team.

Frazer Hall, with leadership from their REC, Michael Herndon, also had a productive year. With its three fraternity floors, the building was again an exciting place. Most importantly, Frazer Hall showed a commitment to service projects this year. The building adopted an international child and sent donations monthly. They also organized a campaign to raise money to assist a Farmville resident with her medical bills. Frazer Hall Council also held a Halloween Party for local children. The RAs also demonstrated a commitment to reducing vandalism and were recognized by the residence life staff for this work.

The Colonnades and the Cunninghams, under the leadership of Ken Rocken-sies, enjoyed another productive year. The RAs contributed many long hours to support the residents of both buildings. They also provided the campus with the Cunninghams Greatest Lecture Series and an Evening at the Colonnades. Four special interest floors are housed in these areas, including International Studies Hall, the Honors Floor, ECO, and Longwood's Alcohol Free Floor. The Colonnades also offered their annual Haunted Tunnel and other programs, and the Cunninghams Hall Council provided t-shirts, ice-cream social, and a Black History month Speaker.

Cox and Wheeler had a new REC this year. Beth Ellis, Beth and the Cox/Wheeler staff pro-vided the residents with a great deal, and in fact, won the Residence Life Award for Program of the Year for their Wheeler Back Lounge Series. Wheeler Hall Council also made exam care packages and Hall t-shirts. They also sponsored the Roommate Game which provided money to Special Olympics. While Wheeler remained the traditional all woman's building, Cox experienced some changes with the addition of the Alpha Sigs and an ex-panded freshman floor.

The ARC and Stubbs residents also had a good year. As usual Stubbs, the sorority residence hall, as usual was a center for activity, especially during rush. ARC, in its second year, remained a strong community. The residents of ARC had to work hard to maintain their 2.75 g.p.a. and enjoyed their new fountain. ARC and Stubbs also promoted faculty involvement through the Adopted Faculty Member program. There was also a successful ARC/Stubbs Yard Sale.

Spring Weekend

Something Different

Spring weekend at Longwood is filled with both learning and interesting experiences. It gives the Longwood students an opportunity to participate in a variety of exciting activities. Some of the activities are performances by Lancer Line, the Cheerleading Squad, the Dance Company and numerous other clubs and organizations. There is also the traditional Chili Cook-Off where different organizations compete against each other for the best chili. Another activity that the students look forward to is ooze ball.

Spring weekend is not only for Longwood students but it is also gives the perspective students a chance to observe the festivities at Longwood. Overall, Spring weekend gives students a chance to unite and do something different.

GRADUATION 1994

On May 14, 1994, seven hundred forty-three Longwood students followed their faculty down Wheeler Mall as "Pomp and Circumstance" played. The ceremony opened with the singing of "The National Anthem," performed by Susan Curry, and the Invocation by Class Treasurer, John Borowiec. President William Dorrill and the Rector of the Board of Visitors, Dr. Wyndham B. Blanton, Jr. welcomed the seniors and authorized the granting of the degrees. Senior Class President, Susan O'Prandy, then addressed the class with quotations from Oh, the Places You'll Go and Life's Little Instruction Book Part II. Suzie Agüero then presented Dr. Dorrill with the Senior Challenge Pledge, and Vice President for Student Affairs, Phyllis Mable, presented the Dan Daniel Award to Carla Cawley and the Sally Barksdale Award to Bethea Perry. William C. Bosher, Superintendent for Public Instruction for Virginia gave the address to the Senior Class. Dr. Dorrill then presented Dr. Frank Howe and Pam Arkin with the Maria Bristow Starke and the Junior Faculty awards. Senior Class Vice President, Debbie Reno, then announced Dr. Teresa Clark as the recipient of the Student Faculty Recognition Award.

Finally, the moment occurred and the seniors received their degrees from the president and the Deans, William Frank, Berkwood Farmer, and Deborah Israel (representing William Shaw). Then, the "Alma Mater" was sung by Michelle Cephas, and Ken DeWitt recited his Benediction. The graduates then marched out to "Proud Heritage."

Junior Marshalls Jen Devaney and Sandy Fisher are all smiles for grad-uation day.

THE CEREMONY

At exactly 9:30 am, the Longwood graduation ceremony began. The seniors walked from Jarman Auditorium and met other participants. In front, there was members of the Longwood R.O.T.C. serving as the Color Guard. Carolyn Wells served as the Faculty Marshall and carried the college mace to the platform. Behind Dr. Wells was the entire faculty, lead by the Faculty Marshalls Nancy Andrews, John Austin, Lee Bidwell, Dean Palmer, and Maurice Sneller. The Candidates for Degree were then followed by the Platform Party, which included President Dorrill, the Board of Visitors, the deans of the three schools, the vice presidents, and guest speaker William C. Bosher, Jr.

The Longwood faculty take great pride in their participation in creating the Class of '94.

ACADEMICS

Making The Grade

The College Learning Experience

During their college career, Longwood students have many opportunities to enhance their education. Longwood's commitment is to assist students in achieving six development goals. First, students will work toward a mastery of a broad body of knowledge. This allows students to critically, creatively, and logically respond to the complex world around them. Second, in order to be competitive and successful in their individual career, students must also have a mastery of a specialized body of knowledge. Third, they will have a sense of direction with self-understanding and self-confidence. Fourth, students will strive for a balanced and healthy lifestyle. Fifth, there should be an appreciation for diversity and differences to enhance interpersonal effectiveness. Finally, Longwood graduates should be responsible citizens and have the motivation to contribute to a better life for all through community participation and leadership.

This student looks for an opportunity to research for a history paper.

Kathy Wood and Michael Vass have learned that a strong relationship should be an integral part of their lives.

As with any college student, a lot of the education experience comes from individual study.

Senior Scott Harris, PHI KAPPA PHI member, has worked hard to succeed in his academic major.

A sign of the nineties is the number of computers in the residence hall rooms.

Junior Beth Graves works on yet another class assignment.

LONGWOOD'S CLASSROOM ENVIRONMENT

Longwood has unique commitment to academic excellence. The faculty and administration work to create a personalized and responsive environment. In 1994, Longwood continues to be one of the five most selective schools in the state. Its 1:14 faculty/student ratio with an average class size of 22 students is one of the best in the state. The general education program helps to foster critical and creative thinking, a global perspective, and problem solving skills. With 100 majors, minors, and concentrations, Longwood continues to offer a large variety of opportunities. Surveys of current students also show a satisfaction of 90% with academic programs, faculty, and the overall Longwood experience.

This Longwood Seminar Class from Cox Hall enjoyed different approaches to learning, including this field trip to their LSEM Leader's house.

Dr. Pace provides his students with an interesting and informative lecture.

The science laboratory is another place for students to develop analytical skills.

Dr. Carolyn Wells has helped to teach us all that WE CAN MAKE A WORLD OF DIFFERENCE at Longwood College through her dedication to environmental issues.

These students run into each other between classes.

Residence Education Coordinators, Larry Robertson, and Beth Ellis, work hard to enhance the classroom experience by maintaining a living and learning environment in the residence halls.

WHERE DO LONGWOOD STUDENTS STUDY?

Where do Longwood students study? That's a good question!! However, the answer is simple. To make a long story short, Longwood students study ANYWHERE THEY CAN! Obviously, the classroom is the center of the majority of Longwood's students academic endeavors, and many even find an empty classroom to do their homework. In its third year, the library has become a popular spot for those seeking a quiet environment. For those looking to finish that last minute paper, the computer labs are also available across campus. Many students find their best place to study is in their home. For many, it's their own room; others seek the quiet of the study lounges found throughout the buildings. Some even find the Rotunda, space under a tree, the roofs of Curry and Frazer, laundry rooms, and other unusual places to be the best way to hide from their friends, television, and the phone.

The student finds the history of the Rotunda inspiring.

Making a Difference through Service to Others.

Longwood students are finding community service is a great way to take a break from studying, explore different career interests, get to know faculty and staff outside of the classroom, and learn about issues of concern to our community. Several classes, including Longwood Seminar, incorporate service learning projects, and volunteering is an important activity for many student organizations.

Students, faculty, and staff are making a difference in the Farmville community through programs such as Habitat for Humanity, Adopting a Grandparent, campus and community clean-up projects, SPCA, FACES Food Pantry, rescue squads and fire departments, Big Siblings and Adopt a School Tutoring, as well as the Alternative Fall and Spring Breaks.

Yet it is a team sport because you have the coach and the team on the sidelines cheering you on." — Jeff Smith

FRESHMAN

The Freshman class began the year with a slow start. The officers' main goal was to promote involvement among the freshman. Getting the students involved required creative activities. A food drive was their first successful effort. They also sponsored a booth at Spring Weekend to raise money and participated in the oozeball competition and the chili cook-off. A spring picnic with live entertainment was planned to "wrap up" the year. The officers hoped that their efforts would encourage the freshman to become active members in the Longwood community.

SOPHOMORES

The sophomore class officers found that busy schedules and lack of involvement made planning group activities a difficult task. They decided to focus on fundraising in order to save money for expenses in the upcoming years. The class organized a booth for Oktoberfest. They also participated in the Spring Weekend festivities. Although the officers had a difficult time getting the sophomores together, they did use the year as a "building block" toward their future goals.

JUNIORS

Community service was the focus for the junior class. The officers concentrated on these types of activities in order to promote more student involvement. Their first effort was a booth at Oktoberfest. Then they prepared and served a Thanksgiving dinner for the residents of Weyanoka Inn Retirement Home.

During spring semester, the junior organized an Easter egg hunt for the preschool children at Wynne. They also participated in the Spring Weekend activities. Promoting involvement and participation among the class was the goal of the junior class officers. Through a variety of community service activities, they strove to make their class an active part of the Longwood community.
